NIGHT AT DUNDEE WHILE
RETURNING FROM DANCE.

Saturday evening as a party of young people were returning home from a dance at Dundee they were run into by a freight train at Dundee and Miss Blanche Bruckner, of Milan, and Ben Boes, of Maybee, were killed.

Four others of the party, Merrill King, Lorain Bruckner and Arabella Statler, of Milan, and Carl Isenbauer, of Maybee, were in the car and all received injuries but Arabella Statler, who was in the front seat with the two that were killed. Merrill King, it is thought, may die from his injuries.

Boes, who was driving the car, stopped as he reached the railroad crossing to permit a train to pass, and as the train passed dashed across the track into the path of the backing freight train. The machine was crushed and burned, setting fire to the caboose.

UNIVERSITY STUDENT
IN BAD WITH DEAN

In view of recent criticisms of the administration at the State Normal college the following incident may be of interest:

A university student came last week to interview Dean Priddy in regard to a Normal girl—"one of the seventeen." He urged that she be reinstated as she had done no wrong.

The dean replied: "Young man, you compromised that young woman by keeping her out so late at night; and you may go back to Ann Arbor and tell your friends that hereafter every man from the university who comes down here and does as you have done is going to be reported to the university authorities."

INSTALL OFFICERS FOR THE ENSUING YEAR

At the noonday luncheon of the Rotary club Monday the following officers assumed the duties for the coming year:

President—Dr. H. D. Barrs. Vice-president—F. F. Bennett. Treasurer—Harry Shaefer. Secretary—W. A. Van Wegen. Sergeant-at-arms—Lynn Bell.

In accepting the presidency of the club Mr. Barrs said that it would be his aim to continue the excellent leadership that the club had enjoyed with President Wiedman and give to the club the best he had.

For the splendid manner in which the retiring president had conducted the affairs of the club for the past year a rising vote of thanks was given him.

The president of the Peoria Life Insurance company was present and gave a talk on business conditions as he finds them in the middle west.

Mr. McKenny offered the suggestion that the club endorse the Fess-Capper bill providing state aid for physical education in Michigan. This was done.

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Jordan, of the Detroit-Jordan Producing company, have given it their personal attention and their slogan of "Your money's worth or you get it back" is proof of its merit as the big musical hit of the season. TO ASSEMBLE WOOL
IN COUNTY NEXT WEEK

Next week wool will be assembled in Washtenaw county for the Farm Bureau wool pool. The dates for assembling are as follows: Chelsea, May 2; Dexter, May 3; Saline, May 4 and 5; Manchester, May 6.

The grading crew will be at these places on the above dates, where wool will be received from the farmer's wagon and graded by an expert grader. The records will be handled last season. Each farmer will receive a copy of the different grades and the amount in each grade. This year a cash advance of 40 per cent of the market value of the wool will be given. Last year 141,000 pounds of wool were pooled in Washtenaw county. This year the 1922 pool is starting early. It is Farm Bureau financed and managed throughout and is under the direction of Don Williams. Mr. Williams has been the sheep and wool specialist at the agricultural college and has also had considerable experience in the wool business with a number of eastern wool firms. This year where wool has been received for the 1922 pool, there has been a noticeable reduction in the amount of rejects compared with what it has been in previous years. Eastern mills are reported as being in favor of the pooling method of handling wool.

YPSILANTI PLAYERS
IN LAST PROGRAM

Ypsilanti Players are giving this week their last program for the season, which consists of three one-act plays.

The first on the program is "The Stronger," by August Strindberg. Julia T. Quirk, Matilda C. Holmes and Avis Thompson presented this in a manner that was highly complimentary.

"The Grill," by George Woodruff Johnston, was the next. Those taking part were DeLynn Whitmore, Harry Stevens, Mary G. Steimle and Raymond M. Dell. Presentation of a high order by those in the play won hearty applause from the audience.

"The Touchstone," by Colin Campbell Clements, presented by Clarence Lynn Holley, Charles K. Lamb, John B. Brooks, Daniel L. Quirk, Jr., and Owen Clear was well received.

To make special mention of any one taking part in this group of plays would seem hardly fair, as every part is well taken and those who have had the privilege of seeing the players in their last appearance this season are delighted with the selections and the effort to bring each play out in full representation of its true merit.

Inscribed on the medal are these words, "He died for freedom and honor William Parker Blair."

FORD AND HORSE
IN SLIGHT MIXUP

E. A. Miller, farmer, residing near here, was driving a one-horse wagon on North Huron street Tuesday afternoon, and just when he got near the city hall Mrs. Emma E. Schock, of 208 Maple street, came driving along peacefully in her Ford car. When the car was opposite the wagon it suddenly made a lunge at it, but for once the little Ford was bested in the argument. The left front wheel was ruined and the spring broken. The wagon was not even scratched. The driver, Mr. Miller, was not so fortunate, however, as the jar of the collision unseated him from the high seat of the wagon down to the lowly pavement. He had to be assisted to the curb and kindly disposed neighbors brought out water to revive him. Later he was able to light his pipe and drive away. The little Ford, however, had to be towed into a nearby garage for repairs.

He asked that we give the Japanese a fair deal and not to be too hasty in judging them.

Fordson TRACTOR

"Yes
I've more Time for Myself
Since
I Got
a Fordson"

The Fordson Tractor is taking much of the drudgery out of farm life; it is solving the labor problem; it is reducing the cost of preparing land by almost one half of what it was with horses; and it is saving one third to one half of the farmer's time; and making farm life more attractive.

The Fordson will run your threshing machine—and at the most opportune time for you. It will operate the milking machines, saw your wood, fill your silo, pump the water, and take care of every kind of belt work—

And don't forget—it will plow six to eight acres in a ten hour day, handling two plows with ease.

Thus the Fordson is the ideal year-round tractor. It will pay for its fall and winter keep in many ways.

There's a big story to tell you about the Fordson—and a true one—come in and get the facts. Or, if you prefer, telephone or drop us a card and we will bring them to you.

What is a Picture Frame?

Picture frames are frequently too ornate. The simpler they are the less they attract attention from the picture itself. They should become a part of the picture and not a separate picture in themselves. Color, however, may be used to advantage and any simple wooden frame may be painted in oil paint to match some tone of the picture. Ordinarily this is better than to have the frame harmonize with the woodwork of the room.

CLASS A MILK Quart 12c Pint 6c

Some progress is being made toward protecting the public against tuberculosis at its frequent source—in milk from tubercular cows. It is a long, expensive trail. All the bovine tuberculosis I have ever encountered has been found in cows bought and brought into the herd from the outside. These had been tested, apparently by veterinarians of limited experience, for as soon as tested by the Federal authorities they reacted—and were promptly slaughtered. This was years ago. I have since raised all our cows on the farm. They have been regularly tested by the Federal government as soon as they were six months old and annually thereafter. I have never had a reactor since adopting the slogan, "Better be safe than sorry."

The people of Hillsdale, Jackson, and Livingston Counties, realizing that one child is worth more than many cows, have, at public expense, had every cow in the county tested by Federal authorities and now they prohibit cattle from counties not thus tested from coming into their county to contaminate their cattle. Washtenaw should do likewise and do it now.

Do you look for these things in a Comfort Shoe?

COMFORT, first of all, is what women today are seeking in a household shoe. And rightly, for comfort is of foremost importance.

But are they careful to secure the right type of comfort shoe? Do they make sure of the needed rigid support under the delicate structure of the arch? And do they look for firmness along with flexibility?

And style, too—for they need not despair of securing style in a real comfort shoe. Martha Washington Comfort Shoes give fullest measure of foot-ease, and graceful appearance as well.

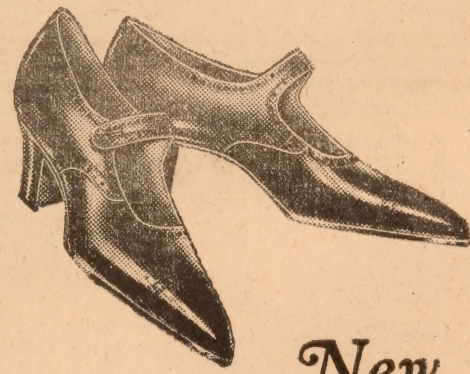

Martha Washington Comfort Shoes

This style shows a shoe that has not a single seam about the foot. A sole so flexible that it can almost be rolled around a pencil. Ask to see the Martha Washington Seamless.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR SKIN FRESH AND CLEAR

Every woman passes as pretty if only her skin is fresh, smooth and young. It is within the power of every woman to possess this attraction to make her complexion as beautiful as she longs for it to be.

The secret? Cleopatra knew and practiced it in the days of ancient Egypt. She observed a daily ceremonial cleansing. The cleansers she used were the same you may have today, Palm and Olive oils.

These beautifying oils are scientifically blended in famous Palmolive Soap. They give it mildness, wonderful soothing qualities, profuse, creamy and refreshing lather.

Cleansing with Palmolive is a beauty treatment in itself. No woman should say her skin is too sensitive to use soap until she has tried Palmolive.

The attractive green cake, the natural color of the oils, is within the reach of every one who appreciates that cleanliness is the greatest beautifier.

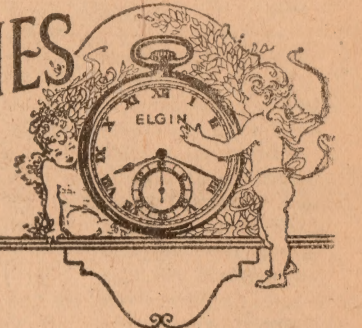

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first class groceries and drug stores.

Storm Country Polly

swerved Bennett, staring at her. Suddenly he came close to her; and Polly backed to the door. His face was red and agitated; the cords in his neck were swollen while his fingers twisted eagerly. That was another thing about which Polly's eyes had been opened in two years of growing womanhood. When a man looked at Oscar did now, a girl got away as fast as she could.

"You might pay me in kisses," he muttered hoarsely, towering over her. "Ten kisses for each bucket. You're a heap prettier than Eve."

For a long moment Polly did not speak. Her breast heaved as she swayed backward.

"I get all the kisses I want to home," she said. "Here, take your hand off'n me, Oscar, or I'll tell Eve the first time I get sight of her." She glared up at him like a cornered animal. "I said I'd tell Eve. I'll do more than that! I'll put old woman Robertson next to your coppin' her kid an' marryin' 'er."

Oscar's fingers relaxed, and his hand dropped away from her arm as a rough laugh left his lips. She looked so lovely, her eyes blazing, her curls tumbled in confusion on her shoulders, that he would have taken his pay for the milk without her permission if she had not thrown at him a threat he feared she would carry out.

"Men's kisses are what you'll get, my pretty lass," he predicted grimly. "and if I was finished with Eve, by God, I'd set about getting my share. I won't always be married to my lady Robertson, mind you, Pollyop."

The blood had left his face. He was quite white and stern, and by this time Polly was on the porch.

"Tain't so easy to get unmarried as 'tis to get married," she told him. "An' me! I'm just Daddy Hopkins' brat, an' I don't want any kisses but his'n. I'd let Jerry's tongue go twist for milk before I'd pay for it with—"

Oscar sprang at her. She was so tantalizingly beautiful, so alluring even in her grotesque attire that for the moment he forgot he had reason to fear her.

"I'll kiss you, anyway," he snarled, but Polly, fleet-footed and afraid, shot from the porch and reached the lane, the milk dashing against the cover of the pail.

The man halted, looking after her. With a shrug of his shoulders he turned back into the house. For the moment he paused in the kitchen; he could hear his old mother pottering about overhead in his bedroom. She was doing the work his wife ought to do! What a fool he had been to marry Evelyn Robertson! Instead of the fortune he had expected, he was tied hand and foot without money or woman. He thought of the radiant squatter girl who had just left him. Two years ago womanhood had not dawned upon Polly Hopkins, but today— He undertaken an oath and went out to the barn.

Polly Hopkins ran down the lane as fast as her legs could carry her. The milk was safe in the bucket, and she had scarcely reached the railroad tracks before she had decided not to mention Oscar's vicious demand upon her. If she told Daddy Hopkins, he would do some harm to Bennett, and there would be no more eggs and milk for Granny and Jerry. If she spoke of it to Evelyn, there was no telling what the girl would do.

The tangle-haired squatter girl was the daughter of Jeremiah Hopkins, the mayor of the Silent City, the leader of all those who lived in the rows of huts that ran along the Lehigh Valley tracks and on down the lakeside.

Uncouth and ignorant were Jeremiah and his kind, and visitors who came to the little city of Ithaca agreed with the town's inhabitants that it was a shame the law allowed such a blot as the Silent City upon the natural beauty of Cayuga and its majestic surroundings.

Pollyop stood shivering, her troubled gaze searching the lake for a boat. Daddy Hopkins had gone away early with Wee Jerry, and she always worried a little when they were out. Yet she knew that the only way to get the bread, beans and bacon for the family was for Daddy Hopkins to defy the law and drag his nets whenever the game wardens were not about. Without the lake and its hidden food, it would be a desolate world indeed.

Wee Jerry was Polly's five-year-old brother, and long before he could walk, he had chosen his father's big shoulders upon which to beat his way through an unfriendly and often hungry world. But this same world which had wizened Jerry had given to Polly a wild beauty, a body strong and as pliant as a marsh reed.

With a sigh Pollyop turned to the house. The door was shut against the storm, and a thin curl of smoke twisted upward from the tottering chimney, losing itself in the baby leaves of the willows. The little lines that had traced the troubled brow vanished at the sight of a slab of wood over the door. On it was painted in crude letters: "If your heart is loving and kind come right in. If it ain't, scoot off." Pollyop and Granny Hope had worked a long time to make this sign, and even longer to nail it up.

"I'll help the Silent City folks, Granny," she had said. "Specially, if I smile a lot at 'em."

She flung open the door and went in, closing it behind her. In one corner of the kitchen, an old woman, so old that no squatter could remember her other than aged, sat near the stove. About her shoulders was a shawl, and its edges were held together with clawlike fingers.

Munching on a bit of hay at the wood-box was a lean goat, an old friend of Polly Hopkins. Long ago she had found him, lost in the wilderness of the Storm country, and had brought him to the Silent City.

The shanty consisted of three rooms. Back of the kitchen Daddy Hopkins slept, and in the miserable coop-hole where Polly had once stored rubbish Granny Hope stretched out her weary bones at night. Polly's bed ranged the kitchen wall, and the room had but a bench, two old chairs and a three-legged table to offer in rude hospitality.

"I wheedled a little milk from Oscar, Granny," said the girl. "Godly, but he's gettin' stingy!"

She put down the pail, went to the stove and thrust a piece of wood into it.

"Wood's as wet as hell," she complained, almost as if she had spoken to herself.

The old woman stirred and lifted her withered lids.

"Hell ain't wet," she muttered. "It's dry an' warm—hot, I mean," and she shivered, drawing nearer the fire. "Tain't like this lakeside."

Granny Hope had been in the Hopkins' shack since the first winter snow. Her own hut stood on a little point about a quarter of a mile away. In it she had lived alone ever since her husband had gone down in the Big Blow, a storm that was a tradition in the settlement, and which only the oldest inhabitants of the Silent City could remember.

One day Polly had found her sick in bed, and, as she had led the forlorn billy goat home, so did she bring Granny Hope, never realizing that in the tottering old figure she was entertaining an angel unawares. All she knew was that Granny's toothless smile, her cheerful words of love and kindness, made the sun shine brighter and the meager food more filling.

During the winter, Mrs. Hope had encouraged the girl to read. At first that had been difficult, for the shanty contained nothing but the tattered Bible the old woman had brought with her. Over and over Polly had read the miseries of Job the patient, the long lamentations of Jeremiah, who always put her in mind of Daddy Hopkins; and she also knew by heart the story of the crucifixion of Jesus, who, so the Bible said, was the best man that had ever walked the globe.

So had those winter days of close companionship with the woman who had lived long and suffered much, and who now was almost ready to on to larger experiences, brought out in Polly Hopkins a greater capacity for loving. The squatters called her "Pollyop, the love-lass," and sometimes, "Polly of the sun." Granny Hope explained this by saying: "They all love you, Polly, an' it's out of your own heart they get the feelin' of joy when they see ye."

From behind the wood-box near where the goat stood, Pollyop took up an ax. Tenderly she bent and placed a kiss upon the goat's horny head. Then she touched Granny Hope.

The woman lifted her lids and smiled at the girl.

"What's the matter, love-lass?" she murmured.

"I'm goin' out, Granny," replied Polly. "If Daddy comes, tell 'im I'll be back in a while."

Into the rain she went, her bare feet carrying her swiftly over the ragged rocks, her curls gathered under her chin like a warm glistening hood. When later she appeared in front of the shanty, her gingham skirt was filled with rusty pans and old pieces of tin. She placed them on the doorstep, and looking hesitatingly at the willow tree, went back into the house.

From a peg Polly took a pair of her father's trousers and clambered into them, tucking her skirts out of sight and rolling up the trouser legs, for Daddy Hopkins was much taller than his daughter. Into one of the big pockets Polly thrust a handful of nails. It was a grotesque looking girl who a few minutes later was flattening out the pans and the old bits of tin upon the stone.

It Was a Grotesque Looking Girl Who a Few Minutes Later Was Flattening Out the Pans and the Old Bits of Tin Upon the Stone.

When that was finished, she gathered them up and, ax in hand, climbed into the willow tree and onto the roof. Daddy Hopkins would be glad when he came home and found the shack dry and warm. Then she began "Corporations Have No Souls."

This legal maxim was first laid down by Sir Edward Coke in the case of Sutton's hospital. "They (corporations) cannot commit treason nor be outlawed nor excommunicated, for they have no souls." Lord Thurlow subsequently paraphrased this maxim in his own rough way: "You never expected justice from a corporation, did you? They have neither a soul to lose nor a body to kick."

TUTTLE HILL

The tornado Wednesday afternoon made a strange circuit, hitting one place severely, then dodging a couple of farms and striking again.
A number of fences were blown over and some trees blown out by the roots and some broken off. The most serious damage reported in this vicinity was at the farms of Henry Owen, A. E. Waltz and Charles Campbell. At the Owen farm a large window in the front of the house was blown in and completely demolished and some damage done to the barns, besides fences blown over. At A. E. Waltz's the silo was unroofed and twisted out of shape and some of the smaller out-buildings overturned. At the Campbell farm the kitchen was unroofed, the back porch torn off and the hen house unroofed and the wood house moved somewhat. The few people who were caught out of doors were carried along by the force of the wind, but no one was hurt.

The Parent-Teachers' association of Tuttle school held the regular April meeting Monday evening in order to be able to have Dr. Pittman, of the Normal college, address them on the rural school work to be taken up by the schools under direction of the rural school department of the college. The business session was short and after singing
"America" by the company Dr.
Pittman was introduced. First he paid a tribute to Tuttle Hill as a community and then referred briefly to the P. T. A. in this district. He told of the rural school department and what had been already accomplished in other schools. He spoke of the dominant forces in our national life, the church in one period of time, and portrayed the minister the big man of his day; the dominant force was next, the political government, and called to mind some of the prominent statesmen and generals and public men of that age; third, the homes, and a tender tribute was paid the homes in which grew up those study men and women who have made America a great nation. Industry is a dominant force, and vividly he brought before us the results of industry; the many things we consider, the common things of life we enjoy through industry; tea from Japan, coffee from Brazil and a long list of the things we use daily brought to us from every country in the world, by big business, someone's industry. The dominant force in the world not to be overlooked is our schools and all must unite to make them the best possible force for good. To have great schools we must have great teachers. He told how the pupil is influenced by the teacher and the help the parents can be to the teacher. Maurice Day, president of the Kiwanis club, who are keenly interested in this school question, and Messrs. Dr. Westfall, Arnold Wiard, Harry Gilmore and Frank McLain, all Kiwanians, accompanied Dr. Pittman, and in response to the invitation of the teacher, Mrs. Lafin, each spoke briefly and to the point of the importance of the work and congratulated the Tuttle school for the interest shown by the patrons in school affairs and each pledged himself to be willing to help in any way possible at any time. Mrs. Martin, president of the P. T. A., presided at the meeting and at the close of the session adjourned the meeting and the refreshment committee served sandwiches, coffee and cake.
The next meeting will be held in connection with the closing exercises of the school, at which time a picnic will be in order.

Miss Hilda Raymond was home
from Detroit for the week-end.

To the Mayor and Common Council.

Representing the Business and Professional Women's Club of this city, I am asked to present this petition to your honorable body, asking permission to conduct a public tree planting ceremony on the grounds of the City Hall on May 4th, between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock, the reason for this request being that the above mentioned club are bringing to the city Miss Jessie Ackerman, an honorary member of the Royal Scottish Geographical Society, and probably the world's most widely traveled woman, who will lecture in Pease Auditorium on the evening of Thursday, May 4th, and who will conduct the tree planting event under the auspices of the club.

We will provide a suitable tree and are perfectly willing you should stipulate the kind of tree to be planted, and we will make all arrangements to the end that the city property shall not in any way be mutilated or harmed.

We should like to plant the tree on the front campus on the north side of the City Hall, in any spot you deem most appropriate. The event is to be public and we solicit the attendance of all members of the Council, their friends, and in fact the general public. The ceremony will not cover over 30 minutes.

Would also ask that the engineer look into the matter of the reservoir that has been built on the Normal grounds and report whether it is likely to be a menace in flood times.

Windmill Without a Wheel.

In South America there are to be seen occasionally a type of windmill which is entirely without the big wind wheel which is such an essential feature of the power generators to be seen in this country. A pivoted surface is balanced in such a way that the wind gets under it and raises it, and when it has thus traveled to the end of its run its angle is changed and the wind brings it down again.
